Blake Farber
Director

Blake Farber is always on a plane off to his next interesting project and a new adventure. Growing up in a household with both parents as photographers, Blake began his own career in film at the young age of 16.

As a self taught New York City filmmaker, Blake has directed various projects in over 30 countries. Being a musician himself, he blends both the visual medium with his musical background to create exciting and fresh films. He's worked as a director for artists and brands such as Olympics, Nike, Ray-Ban, Beyoncé, Dropkick Murphys and many more.
