Director

At the Danish border Sune once had to shake off the customs police with a van full of illegal wine he had driven from Sicily. The next day he founded his own film company in Copenhagen with his partners in crime. That's ten years ago and there hasn't been a production since that didn't want him as their pilot. Even though he still doesn't hold a driver's license.

Sune's retirement plan is to become mayor in the Etna-village, Randazzo, while singing along to Elvis.
